

Kathleen Sullivan is the Director of CASB's Legal Services Program. Ms. Sullivan provides legal representation to CASB's LSP clients, particularly in matters relating to special education and anti-discrimination. She also consults with school board members and administrators on a wide range of education law issues, including civil rights, student rights and responsibilities, school personnel issues, and school board policy.

Prior to joining CASB, Ms. Sullivan worked for ten years training and advising public education agencies in compliance with federal and state special education and anti-discrimination laws. Most recently, Ms. Sullivan served as the Senior Advisor for Special Needs Programs and Litigation for a large urban school district in Georgia. Previously, she was an attorney with the Weatherly Law Firm concentrating in litigation in the areas of special education and school law. Ms. Sullivan has written several articles pertaining to education law and is a frequent presenter at the national and local levels.

Before entering into the practice of law, Ms. Sullivan served as an administrative law judge in Pennsylvania, a teacher in the Chicago Public Schools and an interim charter school principal in Philadelphia. She received her B.S. in Elementary Education from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and her J.D. with honors from the University of Pittsburgh School of Law.

Ms. Sullivan grew up in Michigan and Chicago. As a passionate supporter of public education, Ms. Sullivan moved to Colorado to join CASB's Legal Services Program. She and her family are outdoor enthusiasts and enjoy skiing, bike riding and kayaking.
