

ANNUAL DISTRIBUTION OF POLICIES IN STUDENT HANDBOOKS

Various state and federal laws direct school districts to provide policies to students and parents on an annual basis. The following list is an overview of the policies required by law to be distributed. The list also covers policies that are highly recommended for distribution because of legal liability issues.

While we believe the list is comprehensive, school district personnel should consult with legal counsel and others to determine whether the list meets the district's legal and practical needs.

Policies must be distributed because students and parents must have notice of what they can expect when certain circumstances arise during the school year.

When evaluating your policies for distribution to students and parents, ask the following questions:

- Does this policy state an expectation for which there is a possible consequence?
- Does this policy give students and parents notice of important rights and responsibilities?

If the answer to either question is yes, the district should provide the policy to students and parents.

Policies do not need to be provided verbatim. However, the policy should be summarized with enough specificity to allow students and parents to know what is expected of them and to inform them of their rights and responsibilities. If a regulation accompanies a policy, it should also be included. Summarizing policies and regulations for use in student handbooks is not an easy task. Please ensure that the person assigned this responsibility has a good understanding of district policy and legal issues. The handbook should be reviewed by legal counsel prior to distribution.

Note: The policies, regulations, and exhibits referenced throughout this document refers to CASB sample documents. Your district may have different policies, regulations, and exhibits that cover the same subject matter. If so, this list will not suffice and you will need to look at your district-specific documents; nevertheless, this list may still be helpful in determining the content of your student handbooks.
